The 8th edition of Guerra e Pace Filmfest (War and Peace Filmfest) takes place from July 19th to the 25th, 2010, at the five-century old Sangallo Fortress, city of Neptune, Italy, with Danis Tanovic's TRIAGE screening on July 21st.

Reflecting on current issues such as international conflict and peace, each year the festival brings to the public a week dedicated to the cinema of war and peace along with book presentations and exhibitions. This year's opening exhibition by Aiviter will be Years of Lead: The voice of the Victims – Lest We Forget, in 27 exhibition panels documenting the terrorist attacks in Italy from 1969 to 1988.

Included with TRIAGE in this year's film schedule are Samuel Maoz's Lebanon, George Rights' The Man That Will, Kathryn Bigelow's The Hurt Locker, Quentin Tarantino's Inglourious Basterds, John Woo's The Battle of the Three Kingdoms, and Victims, a documentary by Giovanna Gagliardo.

This festival sounds like it would be very intriguing and heart wrenching. As difficult as it might be, it's so important for the horrors of war to be revisited. Hopefully people will work towards a more peaceful future by remembering the past.
